Iraq: war not the ugliest of things

The Roman Catholic Bishop of Lancaster says war with Iraq would be 'catastrophic' (Letters 26 December 2002). I would remind him of what John Stuart Mill said about being forced to go to war in a good cause-

'War is an ugly thing, but not the ugliest of things: the decayed and degraded state of moral and patriotic feeling which thinks nothing worth a war, is worse.' (Cited Schott's Original Miscellany Bloomsbury, 2002, page 115).¹
