

Double trouble for ex-Home Secretary

On the Blunkett affair, Matthew d'Ancona wrote on 19 December 2004 of the 'all-important fax' dated 29 April 2003. This he says 'conveniently has not survived'.

It is worth remembering that a fax involves two documents, not just one. There is the original, and there is the copy of it that is printed in a different office from the fax transmission. So two documents, in two different Home Office departments, have both conveniently gone missing. That must double suspicion.
