

Letter in the Daily Telegraph
Easing burden of proof against terrorists
by Francis Bennion

© 2011 F A R Bennion
Doc. No. 2011.001

Website: www.francisbennion.com

Daily Telegraph 10 Jan 2011

Any footnotes are shown at the bottom of each page
For full version of abbreviations click 'Abbreviations' on FB's website

The standard of proof for civil cases is which verdict is most likely to be correct. For criminal cases it is proof beyond reasonable doubt. I suggest that for terrorist offences we should abolish control orders and switch to the civil standard of proof.

If at the trial of a person accused of a terrorist offence he or she is found more likely to be guilty than not guilty there should be a conviction.

References

None